

A seasoned technology executive, Dan Schindler has founded and developed creative and varied businesses his entire career, from coal-mining to convenience shopping, and from the automobile industry to professional sports management.

For most of the last decade, Dan was CEO of CentralNic, a domain industry leader that recruited nearly every accredited registrar as resellers of second-level names, and he grew the company many times over to multi-million dollar profits. Prior to CentralNic, Dan founded Gecko Internet, a web-design and hosting company. He is also the past sales director of Visi Systems Ltd, producers of business and medical software.

Dan is a graduate of Surrey College of Technology.